

Japan — Fukushima 2011 and the structural aftermath

An external shock and the multi-year recovery path. The helmsman flipped 17 times across the period — the loudest in the corpus.

The 2011-2012 transition shows in every viewpoint at once: composition (nuclear collapses), helmsman (carriers shift abruptly), Power Share (massive concentration of squared CLR motion at one step).

The years AFTER tell the deeper story — Japan's post-Fukushima mix kept reorganising for over a decade, and the yeast moments distribute across multiple carriers as solar, gas, and renewables each took turns absorbing the displaced nuclear share.
